DEATH IN "MYSTERY HOUSE" AND MURDER LEAVE FEW CLUES

Two Girls Killed Give Boston Police Hard Problem in Crime.

BOSTON, Dec. 28.-Two murders, one promising sensational developments, and the other a baffling mystery as the Richeson-Linell case, today confront the Lying in the Hyde Park morgue is the partly dismembered body of Miss Mary Bolduc, mill operative, of Manchester, N. H., whose body was found in the first floor apartment of a three-suite house in Forest Hills, where it is thought the twenty-year-old mill work er died a week ago during an operation In the same suite, the police say, were two other women patients.

Police Make Arrests.

In connection with the death of Mary 66 Bolduc, the police have arrested the following on charges of murder: Mrs. Jennie H. Shatuck, forty-seven, a whose house the dead girl was found; Mrs. Pattie M. Hezlett, twenty-one, Mrs. Shattuck's maid; Dr. John D. Ferguson forty-three, Manchester, N. H., who says he brought the Bolduc girl to Boston, to be treated by Miss Mary O'Nell twenty-eight, who also was arrested. Miss O'Nell is said to have taken the Bolduc girl to Mrs. Shattuck. The arrest of a man is expected.

The police found the body after Dr. Ferguson called up Boston from Manchester to tell them a girl had died at the Shattuck "house of mystery." He said he didn't know the girl was dead until Mrs. Shattuck told him last Wednesday. The police believe an effort was made to do away with the body, as it was partly dismembered.

Crawled to Doorstep.

Boston's second mystery was the find ing of Bridget Pritchard, eighteen, only six menths in this country, stabbed through the breast in front of her home in the Hyde Park district. The gir was walking to her aunt's, where she lives, when she was stabbed. By marks in the muddy road it was seen that she dragged herself 100 feet to her door step, where she was found dying.

The girl is not known to have had any men companitons, and the police, after meh companitons, and the police, after scouring the neighborhood all night, to-day admitted they have absolutely no clue to work on.

The police found a cheap red necktie near the scene of the stabbing. They believe it was torn from the assailant during the struggle, and by it the police hope to be able to identify the man.

An autopsy today showed that the girl had been attacked before she was stabbed.

File Two Suits Against Street Railway Company

Two damage suits were filed against the Washington Railway and Electric Company in the District Supreme Court today. Helen Cox, who claims she was injured in a collision between two street cars, asks for $15,000, and Henry A.
Gehrmann, who alleges he was run down while riding a bicycle, seeks $10,000.

Harold D. Sanders filed suit against the City and Suburban Railway of Washington for $3,500, alleging he was beate nby a conductor and thrown from a street car. He alleges he was struck in, the face and stomach by the conductor.

"He is my guest."

"Other men have been your guests and have not always come away without harm."

A red spot of anger leaped to the woman's cheek and her hand moved swiftly to her bosom; but she controlled herself, and, leaning back lazily, smiled at her opposite.

"Why are you so careful of this one? What do you propose to do with him?"

"I have told you that he fought for me."

Elise Dexter and Burroughs, a young American artist, members of a party of tourists in Tangier, lose their friends, because the girl stops to buy a ring in which is set a yellow sard. The ring seems to be much in demand, for Burroughs and Miss Dexter are separated and questioned about how it came into their possession.

Miss Dexter is captured and imprisoned by two Moors, and spied upon (unbeknowing to her captors) by a yeung Jew, who has learned of the ring from the shop keeper of whom it was purchased. Burroughs is haled to a Moorish house by Savary and Dupre (two Frenchmen evidently concerned in native politics), stripped, and searched for the ring and some "papers." A scuffle ensues, ending disastrously for the Frenchmen, who are overcome. Burroughs, searching for clothing so that he may go

Bompard."

"You know he did not. What have you against him?"
Savary made a funnel of his lips and blew little, gray smoke rings that were caught in the warm current of air near the lamp and carried upward, to disappear in the dimness near the ceiling. "Bah!" he remarked as he exhausted the mouthful of smoke and brought his gaze back to the woman.

She was resting her elbows on the table, the cigarette held between the fingers of her right hand, which she now and then approached lazily to her lips.

Something in the nonchalance of her "What have I against him?" he snarled. "He killed Dupre, and if he did not kill me, it was not his fault. Anyway, he has put me to a deal of trouble by not giving up the ring peaceably."

The true explanation seems to be that the country is bent on keeping a little closer eye on Congress and on finding out what the national legislative body is getting paid for. It is stated by members that there is an increasing demand for the Record from farmers and workingmen. It used to be that only a very few folks in a Congressional district took the Record. Even libraries used to be careless whether they got it or not. But nowadays it is different. The farmers are reading more about Con gress and so are working people. One of the reasons attributed for the growth of circulation of the Record is the establishment of rural free

Commissioners Oppose Sunday Labor Bill

The Commissioners do not regard with favor the bill introduced by Congressman Heflin, of Alabama, to prohibit Sunday labor on buildings, railroads or streets in the District.

In a report submitted to Congress the Commissioners say the volume and character of work on Sundays is only such as is essential for the convenience and safety of the public. The amount of such work, they say, is inconsiderable, and to prohibit it would be detrimental to the public interest.
